Come Home America, the spirited and stirring ode to troops around the world to improve and strengthen the dialogue between civilians and military families for years to come, is now available for licensing worldwide.

- Come Home America, a pop anthem produced by Ke$ha collaborator Cliff Goldmacher, is unbound by musical genre and inspired by America’s military heroes, honoring our troops and supporting our veterans abroad.

- Come Home America, released on Veterans Day 2013, was written and recorded by “wonderfully imaginative” NYC jazz vocalist-songwriter MARCUS GOLDBERGER, who has been called “most memorable” by The New York Times, and has earned 4-star reviews in People Magazine, which says he “will have you giddy one moment and melancholy the next and loving every note. … finding the soul in each note with his no-frills approach.

- Come Home America has ongoing support from The USO: “Marcus Goldhaber has a precious vision to embrace and support our troops and veterans with his rousing anthem as the soundtrack,” says Joseph P. Brooks, President & COO of Liberty USO. “It’s the start of a movement, and being on the ground floor we stand tall in not only participating, but urging everyone to join with us as it spreads across the country.”
• Come Home America is the centerpiece of a tour which will hit stride in 2015 in concert halls, stadiums, military bases, and parades around the world.
